we are an imaginary artgroup. that does not mean we don't exist, but that we exist in the imagination. we employ negotiators to speak for us, and work with whichever artists most suits our needs.

we are live, interdisciplinary, installation, digital, interactive art. we fuck around with reality from the back room. this isn't always as exciting a position to be in as the myth suggests. then again, sometimes it's better.

we will try to figure out why there is a barrier between you and us, then destroy it. even though we know that no such barriers exist, don't we?
